In-Text Citations

Work With One Author

If the author’s name appears as part of the sentence:

Put the publication year in parenthesis after the author’s last name.

Example: Pratt (2012) found that physical inactivity...

If the author’s name does not appear as part of the sentence:

Place the author’s last name and year of publication separated by a comma in parentheses at the end of the sentence.

Example: The survey showed that students preferred eBooks to print books (Smith, 2015).

Works With Multiple Authors

Works with two authors

If the authors' names appear as part of the sentence include the word "and" between the authors' surnames.

Example: Smith and Jones (2010) found that physical activity...

If the authors' names do not appear as part of the sentence, place an ampersand (&) between the surnames in the parenthetical citation.

Example: At least thirty minutes of physical activity per day helps... (Smith & Jones, 2010).

Works with three or more authors:

Include the last name of the first author followed by et al. and the year of publication.

Example: Parkinson's disease is... (Davis et al., 2013).

Direct Quotations

When citing a direct quote, the page number is required. If page numbers are unavailable it is acceptable to provide readers with another method to locate the material including: a heading or section name, an abbreviated heading or section name in quotation marks, a paragraph number, or a section or heading in combination with a paragraph number.

Example 1 (using a page number):

According to the study, "Research has shown that while coaches are a consistent, key social agent in sport, the relative influence of coaches, peers, and parents may change across the lifespan of athletes" (Chu & Zhang, 2019, p. 570).

- For quotes that span a range of pages, the page number would be indicated as (Author, Year, pp. 570-571).
- For quotes that span non-subsequent pages, the page number would be indicated as (Author, Year, pp. 570, 575).

Example 2 (using a complete heading or section name):

Smoking leads to several illnesses including, "cancer, heart disease, stroke, lung diseases, diabetes, and chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (COPD), which includes emphysema and chronic bronchitis (Center for Disease Control, n.d., Smoking & Tobacco Use section).

Example 3 (using an abbreviated heading or section name):

People should get vaccinated against the flu because "Influenza is a potentially serious disease that can lead to hospitalization and even death" (Center for Disease Control, n.d., "Why Should People Get Vaccinated" section).

Example 4 (using a paragraph number):

It has been demonstrated that “many intracellular cascades have been reported to affect autophagy” (Subauste, 2009, para. 6).

Example 5 (using a heading or section name in combination with a paragraph number):

Though their bites are small and sometimes hard to notice, “always seek medical advice if you’ve been bitten by a bat” (Center for Disease Control, n.d., Bats section, para. 3).
